Teaching Innovation

Using technology to prepare students for the university laboratory

Dr Dino Spagnoli

Lecturer/Coordinator of First Year Studies
School of Molecular Sciences

Laboratory Learning

Laboratories can provide a rich learning environment for students in the sciences

Preparation for the laboratory is a key part of the learning experience

Students come into university with a variety of laboratory experiences

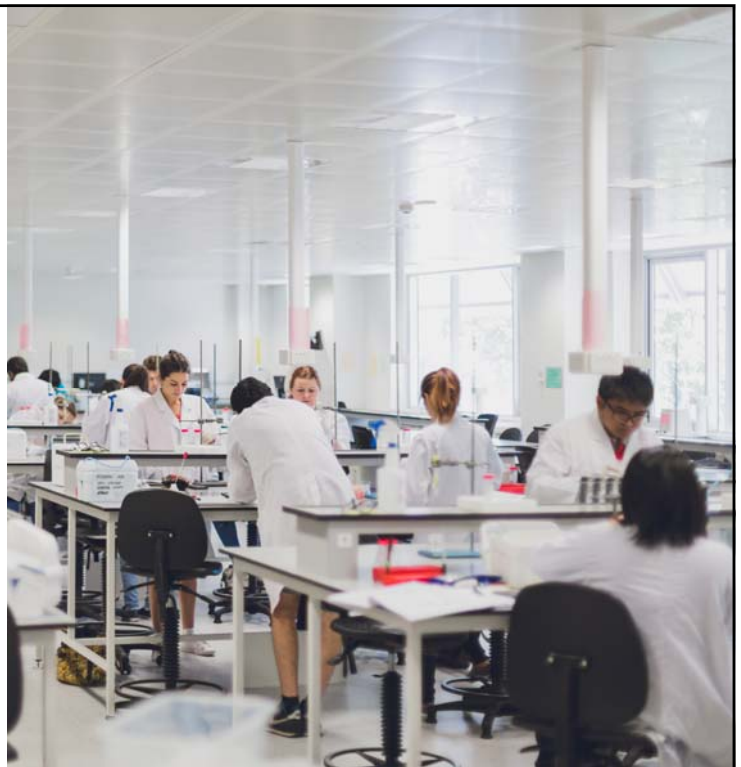

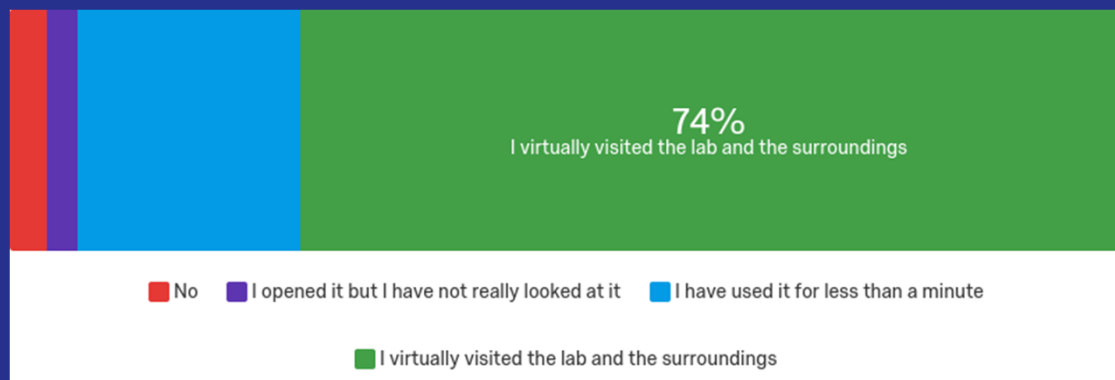

Student Feedback

An online survey was developed with the aim of evaluating student familiarisation and preparation for the laboratory

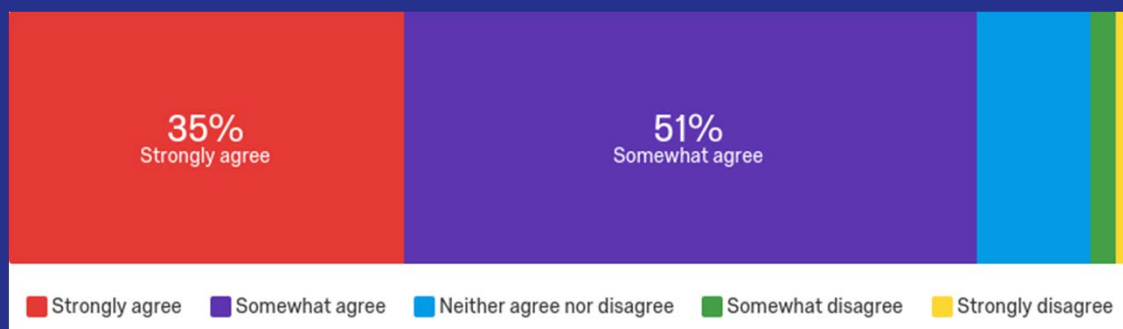

218 responses (27% response rate)

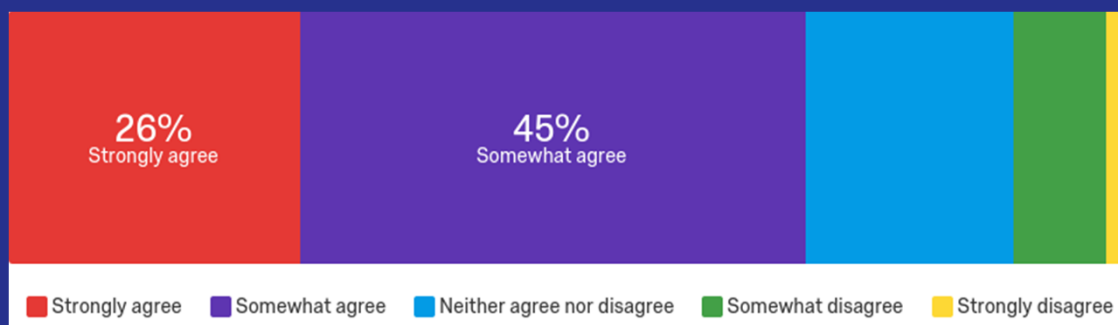

Question: Did you use "360Lab" image?

Question: "360Lab" image was helpful to familiarise myself to the laboratory environment

Question: “360Lab” image was helpful to prepare myself for the first lab

Student comments:

“As a first year student, it was good to be able to virtually visit my lab class before the actual lab, so I knew where everything was so I didn't have to stress during the actual assessed lab.”

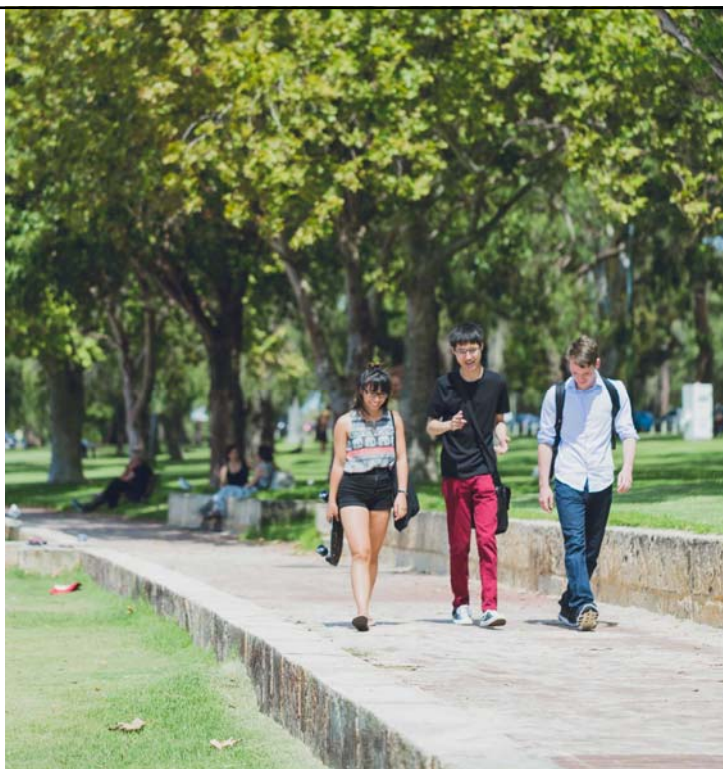

“Learning the environment I would be working in and where I could get my equipment from. This allowed me to walk into my lab on the first day and be confident, rather than spending lots of time familiarising myself with a foreign environment.”

Future improvements:

“Would be nice if it could be worked into a prelab for the first lab session somehow. Kind of like a game, you follow similar steps to where you would actually go on your first lab by clicking on each station/point.”

“Adding more information of where equipment maybe found for every individual experiment.”
